

Human Rights in the Workplace

An Overview for Employers

Creating respectful, inclusive, and discrimination-free workplaces makes good business sense.

This full-day interactive workshop is designed to assist employers, business owners, managers, human resources professionals, union leaders and members of the public to understand their rights and responsibilities under human rights law.

Topics covered include:

- ◆ How human rights are protected by law
- ◆ Discrimination and the BC Human Rights Code
- ◆ Preventing, addressing, and responding to racism and other forms of discrimination in the workplace
- ◆ An employer's duty to accommodate
- ◆ Supporting employees with addictions
- ◆ Dealing with bullying and harassment in the workplace, including sexual harassment
- ◆ COVID-19 and human rights
- ◆ Creating an inclusive, discrimination-free workplace
- ◆ Navigating the Human Rights Tribunal process

ABOUT THE FACILITATOR:

Laura Track is a lawyer and educator in CLAS's Human Rights Clinic. She advocates on behalf of people who have experienced discrimination and assists complainants to navigate BC's human rights process. Laura also has a keen interest in making legal knowledge accessible. She delivers workshops and presentations to a wide variety of audiences to help people understand their human rights and comply with their legal obligations.

April 12, 2021
9:30am-4pm
by Zoom

$200 per person

A package of materials will be provided.

This course is accredited for 6 hours of Continuing Professional Development credit by the Law Society of BC

We can come to you!

If you would like to host a human rights workshop at your own organization, please contact us.

If you are a non-profit and the fees pose a barrier, call us to discuss alternate arrangements.

For more info and to book

Contact Svetlana:

T: 604-673-3122

E: skhakhleva@clasbc.net

www.bchrc.net